About NSLA's Summer Policy & Practice Forum

The National Summer Learning Association will host the Summer Policy & Practice Forum, November 9th through 11th in Washington, DC to turn bold goals for young people into big bets—and build the partnerships to make them real.

ENGAGE WITH LEADERS FROM

Youth Development, Community Based Organizations & Non-Profits

Summer Youth Employment and Internships

K-12 & Higher Education- Public, Private, Parochial, Charter Schools

Intermediaries & Associations

Workforce & Enterprise Learning

Philanthropy

Parks, Libraries, Museums, Public Housing

Local, State, & Federal Policymakers

Camps & Outdoor Education

Business & Corporate Social Responsibility

PARTICIPANTS WILL ARRIVE WITH DIFFERENT GOALS, PERSPECTIVES, AND CAPABILITIES. THEY WILL LEAVE WITH A SHARED READINESS TO CLOSE AMERICA'S SUMMER OPPORTUNITY GAP.

Some will bring a bet they are ready to strengthen.
Some will build a bet from an emerging idea or persistent challenge.
Others will bolster an existing bet by contributing policy authority, funding, evidence, talent, facilities, technology, or reach.

Why Now?

THE MOMENT IS CRITICAL.

Young people face unprecedented challenges and the decisions we make today will shape their tomorrow. The summer months can be either the most dangerous or most impactful time of year for kids. It is our choice.

BUDGET PRESSURES

Public resources are stretched thin, even as demand for out-of-school time programs, mental health supports, and academic recovery continues to grow.

YOUTH MENTAL HEALTH

Young people are facing a mental health crisis. Safe, supportive summer programs are a critical part of the solution.

FEDERAL & STATE POLICY SHIFTS

Administration priorities and state initiatives will shape funding, access, and accountability for youth programs.

HISTORIC FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

From federal tax education credits to the Summer for All Act and social media settlements, new investments are on the table.

WORKFORCE & ECONOMIC FUTURE

Employers need skilled, work-ready talent. Summer experiences build the competencies and confidence today's economy demands.

Summer is the highest-need and highest-impact time of year.

THE OPPORTUNITY GAP

55%

of K-12 students are engaged in structured summer learning (about 30 million students).

67%

of higher-income youth participate in structured summer programs."

38%

of lower-income youth participate in structured summer programs."

With the right policies and partnerships, we can close opportunity gaps, strengthen communities, and help every young person thrive.

With bold action and cross-sector collaboration, we can ensure every child has access to a high-quality summer—every year.

The Forum will focus on debriefing and evaluating the impact and opportunities ahead for youth development from:

- The national midterm elections
- The federal tax ed credits and state initiatives
- The social media litigation investments
- Emerging funding opportunities that could reshape youth development, including the $4B Summer For All Act

Less Conference. More Collaboration.

This is where leaders come together to solve problems, spark ideas, and drive real change.

Our dynamic format is designed to foster meaningful dialogue, strategic partnerships, and collective action.

A FORMAT BUILT FOR IMPACT

BOLD BETS PLENARY

National leaders set the agenda and inspire action with big ideas and bold commitments.

SOLUTION SALONS

Small-group strategy sessions that dive deep into solutions and spark innovation.

POWERFUL CONNECTIONS

Intentional networking that builds relationships and strengthens partnerships.

JEFFERSONIAN DINNERS

An iconic evening of conversation, reflection, and connection in the heart of Washington, DC.

High-impact keynotes and panels exploring the most pressing opportunities and challenges facing youth.

Interactive conversations focused on actionable ideas, shared learning, and cross-sector problem solving.

Dedicated time and space to meet new partners, reconnect with colleagues, and expand your network.

A memorable experience with distinguished guests in a historic setting that inspires dialogue and ideas.

MORE THAN A CONFERENCE A CATALYST FOR LASTING IMPACT.

The Summer Policy & Practice Forum is designed for leaders who are ready to collaborate, innovate, and invest in solutions that create brighter summers and futures for young people.
